

THE CLASSROOM™

One of Pattaya's Best Loved and Most Famous Destinations

The Classroom A-Go-Go, located in Soi 13/4, South Pattaya, is a destination in itself and by far one of Pattaya best known and most popular go-go bars and with good reason, they are world famous for their friendliness, customer care and service, not forgetting the stars, of course, the more than 100 gorgeous, super-amicable Thai girls (70 dancers, 10 hostesses and service staff) just waiting to make your visit fun-filled and unforgettable.

The Classroom thrives on its reputation, on word-of-mouth referrals and returnees, whose very desire to come back time and time again tells it all. Not least among these are the members of the UK Armed Forces, like the Parachute Regiment and the Royal Marines whose 1000+ names are emblazoned on the wall-plaques, not forgetting the many US soldiers, sailors and marines who flock to partake of the warm hospitality every time there's a Cobra Gold exercise in the vicinity. Of course, it's not necessary to be of a martial disposition to be treated like a lord at the Classroom, any gentleman and ladies, too, are more than welcome anytime during their daily opening hours from 2pm to 2am.

History

The Classroom started from humble beginnings as a one-unit go-go bar in the halcyon days of December 1993, on the site of the old Cuckoo's Nest Beer Bar. From there their ongoing success and popularity required a whole series of expansions, including firstly doubling in size, then adding a new upstairs Lounge and Sports Bar, followed by splitting the upstairs into a lounge and new VIP lounge and now the Classroom's new guest house, currently ten units above the bar, with another five envisaged.

The Stars

You can, naturally, see the ladies in the flesh, first hand, pirouetting around the chrome poles in four different uniforms per week, in situ, just waiting to catch your eye, but as a preview you are encouraged to log-on to the Classroom's excellent website at www.classroom1.com. There, following the user-friendly menu, you will find a cornucopia of delights to titillate your fancies and start your mouths watering. Included are hosts of pictures of the girls, including their reference numbers, so you know who to make a beeline for in advance when you actually come to the Classroom, or even send a gift (which you can buy in the online store) as a preliminary to romance and to arouse the lady in question's curiosity. Their profiles are also included, some of which I'll reveal at the end. Videos of the frequent parties are also available, as are freebies you can download like wallpaper or E-cards. Be sure to look at the FAQs if you're new to Pattaya, where there's a host of info on do's and don'ts in Thailand, but also the sound advice that in the event that you're shy, the English or Thai management, or Gao, the Mama-San, will be only too happy to arrange the necessary rendezvous or answer any questions you may have. You'll also be happy to hear that the ladies earn a very generous wage, topped up with commissions (not counting their own earnings), based on an incentive scheme, so the ladies are well able to send their contributions home to help sustain their families, as well as having enough to buy food, mobile phones and other trinkets.

The VIP Discount Scheme

So far over 800 satisfied customers have joined the Classroom's VIP scheme, which effectively extends the benefits of Happy Hour discounts full time to its grateful card-holders as they get discounts ranging from 10-25%. Literally anyone can join the VIP scheme and qualify for a laminated card embossed with the phrase 'Master's Card', (note the play on words), all you have to do is ask one of the managers or the boss. During Happy Hour, from 2-6pm, drinks are available at the following sample prices: beers, especially the popular San Miguel - Bt90, spirits like Smirnoff vodka, and Bacardi rum, the same, , while the top of the range brandies like Courvoisier and Hennessy's are Bt140; normal prices being Bt120 & 170 respectively. As I say, VIPs qualify for Happy Hour discounts all the time, but obviously not a double discount during Happy Hour, when the VIP privileges don't apply. There are also other discount schemes operating at the discretion of the boss, for instance if a customer wishes to take a lady away on holiday, the normal cumulative 'sign-out fee', so to speak, will be reduced. Also, in the unlikely event that the lady of your choice turns out to be incompatible while you're away, a proportional refund also applies.

The Classroom's Hotel Rooms and Apartments

Unlike many of Pattaya's bars, the Classroom has anticipated its customers' needs by providing a convenient 10-room guest house, so you don't have to traipse in from a hotel at the far-flung corners of town to join in the fun, either at the Classroom, itself, or other venues in nearby Walking Street.

The entrance to the Classroom's Hotel is self-contained and separate from the bar. You will have your own electronic security key card and can come and go in complete privacy. There is also never a charge for your overnight "guest/s". Prices range from Bt1,050-1,250 per night, with substantial discounts if you stay longer, up to the best rate of Bt550 daily if you stay for three months or more.

Party time at the Classroom

As you might expect, at the slightest excuse parties are thrown at the Classroom. Normally in celebration of popular festivals like Halloween (coming up soon), Xmas, New Year, Loi Kratong and, of course, the dousing festival, Songkran, as well as the management and girls' birthdays etc. You can hold one in the bar or even throw a private one in your own room. Packages or combinations include:

1. Downstairs Bar: Party Plan A: cake, 1 bottle champagne, a Classroom t-shirt, balloons and a banner advertising your party. Bt2,500.

Party Plan B: If you require food (roast chickens, shepherd's pie, pasta salads, potato salads, bread & butter) then for a minimum of 10 people it will cost Bt200 per head.

2. Private Room, in your own room or you can book a room for your own private party from 8 pm-1 am, for Bt1,000, with your own service staff and a 10% discount on all your drinks, excluding "Lady Drinks" and "Lady Cocktails". The two Party Plans are also available in-room.
